

MERRY CHRISTMAS

a time for sharing with others

When I saw this bogie on a RoadRailer train last July, I immediately noticed the unusual red and green colors of the initials and number which had been white on every other bogie I'd ever seen. I could only conclude that an anonymous shop worker had unofficially indulged in some holiday creativity sometime in the past. I was touched by this subtle expression and decided it should grace my holiday card this year.

I wish for you to enjoy this time of gathering with family and friends, both old and new, whether in person or in thought.
